

Where will Sound Transit take you tomorrow?

SeaTac residents connect to multiple destinations throughout the region every day. As our population grows and congestion increases, these connections are getting tougher to make. Sound Transit is planning for the next round of system expansion to increase mobility for people throughout the Puget Sound Region.

The Sound Transit Board is seeking input on a draft list of projects to be considered possible candidates for a ballot measure to fund the next round of regional mass transit investments. After collecting input on the Draft Priority Projects List, the Board will identify a final list of projects to be studied this fall. The results of those studies will support further narrowing by the Board to shape a draft ST3 measure for public input in early 2016.

An interactive Sound Transit 3 website offers community members a chance to learn more about regional transit benefits, explore potential projects, and take a survey through July 8. In addition, six public meetings around the region begin June 16:

Seattle: June 16, Union Station, 401 S. Jackson Street

Everett: June 18, Everett Station, 3201 Smith Avenue

Redmond: June 23, Redmond Marriot, 7401 164th Avenue N.E.

Tacoma: June 24, Greater Tacoma Convention & Trade Center, 1500 Broadway

Seattle \(daytime\): 11:30 AM-1:30 PM June 25, Union Station, 401 S. Jackson Street

Federal Way: June 25, King County Aquatic Center, 650 S.W. Campus Drive

Except the June 25 daytime meeting in Seattle, all of the meetings will run from 5:30 to 7:30 PM.

The Puget Sound regions expected 30% population growth by 2040 will be equivalent to adding the populations of Tacoma, Seattle and Bellevue combined to our already congested transportation network. High-capacity transit investments are the best way — and in many cases the only way — to significantly expand transportation capacity in the state's most congested corridors. We encourage you to join the conversation.

Take a survey through July 8. Visit the Sound Transit 3 website to learn more. Email comments by July 8 to soundtransit3@soundtransit.org

Reading Tip

Children learn language and other early learning skills by listening to their parents and others talk. As children hear spoken language, they learn new words and what they mean. Make sure your child has lots of opportunities to talk with you, not just listen to you talk.
