May is Puget Sound Starts Here Month

Governor Jay Inslee has proclaimed May as Puget Sound Starts Here Month.

Puget Sound Starts Here Month Proclamation.

Puget Sound Starts Here (PSSH) is a public awareness campaign connecting more than 750 organizations across the Puget Sound region's 12 counties. Partners in this campaign include federal, state and local governments, tribes and non-governmental organizations dedicated to protecting Puget Sound. Puget Sound Starts Here is a campaign to unite efforts throughout the Puget Sound region with the goal of improving the health of Puget Sound. When people work together, small actions make a big difference.

Pollution in Puget Sound threatens our food, our water, and our livelihoods. When it rains, water flows over hard surfaces like house roofs, parking lots, driveways, lawns where the soil has packed down, and streets, picking up animal waste, lawn chemicals like fertilizer and pesticides, oil and car leaks, and many other pollutants along with the rain flow. This polluted water then flows through ditches or storm drains and into our local streams, rivers, lakes, and wetlands that eventually empty into the Puget Sound. Most runoff is not treated.

Together we have the power to fix our local waterways and Puget Sound. Just a few simple changes will make a significant difference.

- In your yard: use fertilizers and pesticides sparingly, or just use compost.
- With your car: take your car to a commercial car wash and have oil leaks fixed.
- Around your dog: pick up dog waste, double bag it and place it in the trash (not in the yard waste bin).
- At home: from cleaning products to septic tank maintenance, be aware of how you care for your home and how it affects the environment.
