

THE CITY OF SEATAC WANTS YOU TO TAKE A WALK

City's new Walking Map created to encourage exploration and healthy vitality in the community

SeaTac, Wash. (January 9, 2012) – The City of SeaTac announces the publication of the City of SeaTac Walking Map. Created for anyone who resides, works or visits the city to get them to connect to the community, live a healthy lifestyle and enjoy local businesses, parks and amenities.

“We are committed to making it easier to walk and explore,” said Todd Cutts, city manager. “SeaTac’s Neighborhood Sidewalk Program is building a network of sidewalks and paths creating access to schools, transit and trails. This new map helps discover access to healthy living whether you are walking to a local park or to the corner store.”

The SeaTac Walking Map is available online at www.ci.seatac.wa.us and they are available at City Hall, the Community Center and the Seattle Southside Visitors Center. The map was made possible by a grant from Public Health – Seattle & King County’s Communities Putting Prevention to Work program.

“This is an exciting opportunity for residents and visitors to SeaTac to make healthy choices and better enable residents and visitors to discover our wonderful community,” said Mia Gregerson, Councilmember and member of the Highline Healthy Communities Coalition.

Communities Putting Prevention to Work (CPPW) is a national initiative to prevent chronic disease and promote health through policy, systems and environment changes. Public Health – Seattle & King County is one of 55 sites throughout the United States awarded grant funding through the Centers for Disease Control & Prevention (CDC). The initiative is tackling obesity and tobacco use, the leading causes of preventable death in our nation.
