

Information Notice

June 22, 2012

Space Shuttle Trainer coming to Museum of Flight

The Museum of Flight has asked that we share this free, historic event with our citizens.

After a 30-year career training crews for every Space Shuttle mission, NASA's Space Shuttle Trainer is leaving its long-time home at the Johnson Space Center in Houston and is bound for its new home at The Museum of Flight in Seattle.

And you are invited to come celebrate with us!

The Space Shuttle Trainer Crew Compartment will arrive at The Museum of Flight at 11 a.m. on Saturday, June 30th kicking off ShuttleFest, a week full of exciting events and activities with appearances by a star-studded line-up that includes Gov. Christine Gregoire, Congressman Jim McDermott and several well-known NASA Astronauts who will be signing commemorative posters and meeting the public.

The event is free to the public. Come join us for ShuttleFest!
Brought to you by Boeing and BECU.

<http://www.museumofflight.org/>

Posted 6.22.12
Lesa Ellis, Executive Assistant